

My dentist told me of his veteran buddy who fought in three wars and survived without a scratch. He underwent surgery at Houston VA for lower back problems caused by carrying heavy pack loads during those wars and came out of it crippled for life. Now he gimps and drags one leg around, mostly, because a VA doctor accidentally or perhaps on purpose, one never knows about those sadistic bastards, cut a spinal nerve to his leg...all VA said was too bad, so sad.... "thank you for your service."
